If you nominate your switch using the dollar ($) column, your fund allocations on this form may differ from the actual allocation shown on your Confirmation of Switch Request because movements in the unit price have occurred.

Generally switch requests received before 12 noon on Sydney business days will be processed using the unit price effective on the date that the request is received. However, if your request requires us to process the switch over multiple days then we will use the unit price effective on the date each part of the switch is processed. If there are current transactions pending (e.g. rebates and fees) on the day a switch is requested, the switch will be processed when all other transactions have been completed using the unit price effective on the date the switch is processed.

You cannot use this form to switch from ANZ Term Deposit options. Please use the ANZ Term Deposit Break Form.

Please clearly write the fund code (see pages 4-6) and investment fund name specific to your product in the below section(s) for each investment selected. Only complete either the $ switch column or the % switch column. If both are completed we will act on the details in the % switch column.
