OnePath Diversified Bond Index

Market and portfolio review

During the fourth quarter, Global fixed income also posted losses for the quarter, with weakness in government bonds, investment grade and high yield bonds. Corporate bonds underperformed both high yield and government bonds for the quarter. The yield spread between investment grade and high yield bonds finished slightly higher for the period. The 10-year US Treasury yield rose significantly – approximately 80 basis points – during this period on anticipation of more aggressive Fed tightening. Rates on the short end of the yield curve also rose substantially, resulting in an inversion of the 2s-10s yield curve by the end of the quarter.

Future investment strategy

Our outlook remains centered on the question of inflation and how markets and policymakers may react to it. The Russia-Ukraine crisis has exacerbated inflationary pressures and increased the risk of recession, especially for the eurozone economy.

Our base case scenario is that the global economy continues to slow. We believe the Fed will be able to engineer a 'soft landing' and avoid a US recession. We anticipate inflation in the US and other developed countries will peak later this year and then start to moderate. We expect China's economy will re-accelerate in the back half of the year, helped by monetary and fiscal stimulus.

From a relative asset allocation perspective, our base case expectations lead us to a modest risk posture where within fixed income we favor floating rate bonds given the rising rate environment.
