Market and portfolio review

Australian Equities rose strongly in the September quarter with the index advancing by 7.81%. Northcape outperformed due to being overweight industrials, coupled with positive stock selection in this sector. Being underweight energy also benefitted performance. Selector outperformed due to being overweight information technology, with positive stock selection in health care also contributing favourably to performance. Bioscience (which has a very small weight in the portfolio of approx. 1%) underperformed due to a number of securities that the manager holds falling in value. OC Small Caps underperformed both its own Small Ordinaries benchmark and the ASX 300. Negative stock selection in materials, consumer discretionary and industrials contributed to the manager's underperformance. OC Mid Caps underperformed both its own ASX Mid Cap 50 benchmark and the ASX 300. Underperformance was mostly due to negative stock selection in financials, materials and consumer discretionary.
