Market and portfolio review

The OnePath Australian Bonds Index Pool portfolio returned +1.03% during the three months ending 31 March 2024. The portfolio tracked its underlying index, the Bloomberg AusBond Composite 0+ Year Index, which returned +1.03% during the same period. The credit rating, yield, and duration characteristics are also similar between the portfolio and the underlying index. The portfolio aims to provide broad exposure to the Australian debt market across Treasury, semi-govt, supra/sov, and credit bonds with a target maturity of 0+ years. Exposures to the Treasury sector (+0.47%), Government Related (+0.43%), and Corporates (+0.14%) contributed positively to absolute performance while there were no detractors. The largest issuer by market value was the Australian Government at 52.2%. Within the quarter, the portfolio added 69 securities to its holdings. As of 31 March 2024, the portfolio had 607 securities while the underlying index had 787 (excluding cash and futures).

Future investment strategy

Returns across investment grade fixed income sectors were generally flat during the first quarter of 2024. Income production and credit spreads tightening helped offset the price declines from an increase in interest rates across the US Treasury yield curve. Developed economies are proving to be more resilient than expected. This is good news for markets. And we're seeing disinflationary progress continuing, albeit imperfectly, in Western developed economies. This in turn is resulting in the start of gentle rate cuts for 2024, which is also good news for markets. Performance dispersion across sectors was muted. In general, credit sectors outperformed government sectors, which followed a broad risk-on tone in the financial markets. Yields continue to look attractive, but tighter credit spreads could limit upside.
