Market and portfolio review

Global markets were dominated by geopolitical uncertainty over the June quarter, centred on the US-Iran conflict. Risk sentiment weakened sharply after the closure of the Strait of Hormuz drove oil prices higher, triggering a global inflation supply shock. Sentiment improved into quarter end as a fragile negotiation process culminated in a temporary peace deal and the reopening of the Strait in late June. As momentum toward a resolution built, oil prices fell, rates rallied, and markets pared back inflation expectations, supporting bond markets.

Global government bond performance diverged. US 10-year bond yields sold off as rising oil prices and resilient data lifted the Federal Reserve (Fed) tightening expectations, before easing from mid- May peaks as oil declined; however, yields stayed above pre-war levels amid firmer inflation and hawkish Fed messaging.

Australian markets were better supported as tightening expectations eased, with Q1 GDP growth of 0.3%, a softer labour market pushing unemployment to 4.4%, and headline inflation moderating in line with falling oil prices — though trimmed mean inflation stayed sticky at 3.6% yoy in June.

As such, the Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) raised the cash rate 25bps to 4.35% in May, returning policy to its previous peak, before holding in June. While welcomed, the RBA didn't rule out further tightening, citing second-round oil price impacts and a tight labour market.

Credit markets remained resilient. US investment-grade spreads tightened to 72bps — the tightest in five years, supported by strong data and Artifical Intelligence (AI) related optimism. Australian spreads held ~10bps wider than pre-conflict levels amid tighter financial conditions. With valuations historically tight, rising default rates and ongoing geopolitical risks, this underpins a cautious credit outlook.
