Market and portfolio review

Global equities faced a volatile first quarter of the year returning negative 8.4%. Volatility was caused by rising inflation, concerns around monetary tightening and the Russian invasion of Ukraine. The Fund outperformed the benchmark over the quarter with relative value manager Royal London contributing most, outperforming by almost 7%. The combination of earnings momentum and a valuation focus was the key drivers of this outperformance.

Future investment strategy

The exposure to high quality companies with sustainable growth in emerging markets should bode well for the medium to longer term. It is anticipated these stocks will continue to perform during both a highly volatile period driven by COVID related issues, as well through to the longer term.
