Future investment strategy

Developed market equities outside the US are attractive but, the greatest potential is in emerging markets. Value, cyclical, and small-cap stocks are expected to outperform in this market environment. When using a sector lens, consumer discretionary and technology seem to be the best value. Consumer discretionary is closely correlated with the economic cycle, and so an economic recovery would likely be positive for this sector, especially since consumers are benefiting from low unemployment. Investors can expect that as rates come down, earnings multiples for technology stocks may see a boost. Early in 2024, markets will begin to discount an economic recovery; policy support should solidify and increase global risk appetite as the year progresses. However, do not anticipate a significant rebound due to the shallowness of the slowdown.
